JACKIE ROBINSON DAY LUNCHEON HELD AT U.S. CELLULAR FIELD

Jackie Robinson's life received special attention at U.S. Cellular Field. Not only did people partake in a feast in honor of Jackie Robinson Day, but they also witnessed an in-depth discussion about why Jackie Robinson was such an incredible man.

On April 15, attendees first dined on sandwiches, salads, and other foods at the United Scouts Lounge in the stadium. Then, they all gathered to the stadium's Conference and Learning Center to watch a panel discussion on why everyone was at the lounge in the first place: to honor Jackie Robinson. White Sox Chairman Jerry Reinsdorf; White Sox general manager Ken Williams; Jonathan Eig; the author of Opening Day: Jackie Robinson's First Season; and Len Coleman, the former National League president sat in front of an audience of attendees to discuss Robinson.

The panelists discussed what Robinson was like, what kind of player he was, and the trails he went through while being the first African American to play major league baseball. During the discussion, they talked about how Robinson was usually not the type of guy to turn the other cheek, making his act of keeping cool while being surrounded by racial tension remarkable. Reinsdorf described Robinson's performance on the field: "he may not have been the greatest player of all time, but he was the most exciting player of all time."

After the discussion, Reinsdorf received the Chairman's award for his efforts in promoting the values embodied in the life and legacy of Robinson. Coleman, who was also a board member of the Jackie Robinson Foundation, presented the award to Reinsdorf.

HOLLYWOOD RETURNS TO LAWNSDALE AS ROBERT TOWNSEND CELEBRATES THE 20TH ANNIVERSARY OF "THE FIVE HEARTBEATS" AT THE RE-OPENING OF ICE THEATERS IN LAWNSDALE

Robert Townsend returns to Chicago to celebrate the 20th anniversary of his film The Five Heartbeats and the re-opening of the ICE Lawndale Theaters on Roosevelt Road and Homan Avenue on Friday, April 22, at 7:00 p.m. Easter holiday weekend.

ICE Theaters pays tribute to Townsend by screening The Five Heartbeats and honoring him with an award during a special interview by B.E.T. executive and former Lawndale resident Louis Carr. "I am proud to be a part of this celebration," states Townsend. "Donzell and Alisa Starks were trailblazers when they opened the country's first African-American owned movie theater chain nearly 15 years ago. By building their ICE Theaters in our communities, they made huge contributions to the revitalization of both the Lawndale and Chatham neighborhoods. The couple continues to set an excellent example for young people that dreams can come true with lots of hard work."

The Five Heartbeats is Townsend's homage to such R&B male singing groups of the '60s as the Temptations, The Dells, and The Whispers. The film became a beloved, iconic neighborhood box office success among African-American baby boomers. "I think the reason The Five Heartbeats holds a special place for so many people is because it takes them back to their youth," explains Townsend. "It reminds them of a time when music told a story."

For more than three decades, Townsend, raised in Lawndale, has been a mainstay in film and television, starting with his first film role (a bit part) in Cooley High, the story of a group of Chicago inner city, African-American high school students. His career ignited in 1984 when he appeared opposite Denzel Washington in A Soldier's Story. Some of his other works include: Hollywood Shuffle, Meteor Man, The Mighty Quinn, Book of Love, Little Richard Story (directed), B.A.P.S. (directed) among many others. Townsend has led an exceptional career ranging from actor, comedian, writer, director, and producer to his most recent position as president and CEO of the Black Family Channel.

He has been busy creating new media in the Internet with an award-winning web series Diary of a Single Mom starring Monica Calhoun (The Best Man, Love And Basketball), Valery Ortiz (South of Nowhere), Janice Lynde (Letters To Dad), Richard Roundtree (Shaft, Se7en), Leon (The Five Heartbeats, Little Richard) and Billy Dee Williams (Star Wars, Brian's Song), which all can be seen online at www.pic.tv.

Townsend's latest film, The Discarded Boys, starring Loretta Devine (For Colored Girls, Crash), Michael Clark Duncan (The Green Mile, The Whole Nine Yards), and Vivica Fox (Independence Day, Kill Bill) will be the opening night film at the American Black Film Festival on July 6 in Miami.

The net proceeds from "An Evening with Robert Townsend" will be donated to the Robert Townsend Foundation, which was set up to encourage, inspire, and motivate new artists to soar. Townsend conducts master classes throughout the country teaching writing, directing, acting, and filmmaking.

Celebrating the 20th anniversary of Townsend's The Five Heartbeats is among several events planned by Inner City Entertainment to commemorate the re-opening of ICE Lawndale Theaters and honor African-American achievements in the film industry. On Thursday, April 21, ICE Lawndale Theaters will show old school throwback film favorites and offer $1 specials at the concession stand.

"In these tough economic times, we are very fortunate and grateful to our customers to have been entertaining and educating Chicago audiences for nearly 15 years. We are especially proud of Robert Townsend's contributions to the film industry, which is why we chose to honor him," states Alisa Starks, president, Inner City Entertainment.

By exhibiting current, classic and independent films, Inner City Entertainment aims to empower the community by showcasing the talents of African Americans both in front of and behind the camera. Inner City Entertainment is the first African-American company in the history of film exhibition to own and operate a first-run movie theater chain. Tickets for these events are available at the ICE Lawndale Theaters box office on April 21. ICE Lawndale 10 is located at 3330 W. Roosevelt Road at Homan Ave. Theaters open daily starting at 12 noon.

2011 Focus

Health and Education

Ten Years has past since the New Millenium scare of the year 2000, a time of uncertainty. In 1999, we began by thanking God for making the newsletter possible. Much has happened since October of 1999 when we first published the North Lawndale Community News more than eleven years ago. Many have contributed, supported, volunteered, written, taken photos, done research, and/or completed our workshops. We have helped many and many have helped us. Health is essential to a good life. Education is necessary for the pursuit of happiness in an economy driven society.

In 2001, our focus targeted the "Revival of the Family". In 2002, we targeted "Wholistic Wellness". In 2003, we targeted "Education and Training". In 2004, the North Lawndale Community News focused on helping our community acquire a better quality of life through higher levels of reading and responsible wealth creation. In 2005, it was Technology, Business Development, and Employment. In 2006, the primary focus for SHS/ NCLN was Health, Education, and Welfare. In 2007, the primary focus for SHS/ NCLN was People and Education. In 2008, the primary focus for was the Church, Financial Literacy, and Technology. In 2009, the primary focus for SHS/NLCN was HEALTH & THE ECONOMY. In 2010, our primary focus was to live and reflect on our previous years of focus, as we progress to a better quality of life.

So many things remain a high priority in our life. As we struggle to enjoy life, many have neglected the necessary choices that preserve and extend a healthy and abundant, spirit, mind, and body. So along with health, there is education (knowing) and the need to have the resources to act upon the knowledge for a better quality of life.

The North Lawndale newspaper was and is created to help fulfill the mission of Strategic Human Services. That mission is to provide information on resources and events that improved the lifestyle of individuals and families. This is our primary objective under that are all of the sub-objectives that help to reach the primary objective. There is a saying that if your're not sure where your're going, your're liable to end up someplace else- and not even know it.

Even though tough times are among us setting positive objectives and staying committed to them will be the focus of our news for this 2011 year.

Employment For Youth And Mentors Through The Neighborhood Recovery Initiative

Nearly 1900 youth of the city of Chicago will be offered the opportunity to become apart of the Neighborhood Recovery Initiative. The Neighborhood Recovery Initiative is a project that is being offered through Governor Quinn's office to help stop the violence that flood the city of Chicago which heavily involve the youth. 20 communities in the city of Chicago and 3 communities in the South Suburbs are granted the ability to hire 80 youth and 16 mentors that will engage in positive dialogue with their peers and business owners throughout Chicago communities with positive messages that will make people aware of the change that is needed in their own community. Subjects like peer pressure, mental wellness, drug use, STD's, and gun violence will be covered by way of the youth. The service will be provided as apart of the Neighborhood Violence Prevention Authority and 23 non-profit organizations have been funded for this project and are currently looking to hire youth and mentors in order to complete the project successfully.

There are four components that will be covered in this initiative which entail mentor plus jobs, health initiatives, school base counseling and re-entry services for ex-offenders. The main goal is to give the youth the opportunity to build on their social and work skills, help stop the violence through out Chicago, but as well to help the youth to succeed academically. This project will also provide adults the opportunity to help the youth with the mission and to give ex-offenders the ability to re-enter into the work force. The hiring process has already begun but still more youth and mentors are needed to fulfil the NRI's mission.

As the violence continues to rise amongst the youth, many agencies are willing to help make a change through this initiative in order to keep the youth busy with a positive message in 23 communities throughout Chicago. So, if you and your child are looking to help make a positive change please contact one of the agencies below in order to get started to build a better Chicago. Below are the names and numbers of the agencies that are looking to get the youth employed and engage in a positive way this summer. The youth and mentors will begin to provide this great service to their communities starting May 9, 2011 and again, the hire process has already begun.

Joining Coleman in presenting the award was Sonya Pankey, Robinson's granddaughter.

Growing up in Brooklyn, Reinsdorf had friends of different racial backgrounds, which helped influenced his efforts to open his doors to people all colors. But, while talking to the press, he admitted that opening his doors was "a selfish thing" because he felt that is not a smart business move to only cater to white people. To him, it is best to hire the most qualified candidates regardless of color. "The secret of my success is not my own brilliance but I surround myself with people who can do their jobs better than I can and I want the largest possible pool to draw from," he said.

Reinsdorf said that people should not forget about Robinson and the terrible moment in history in which he lived. "It's a shame that history isn't really taught in the schools anymore. American history really isn't taught the way it should be taught and things like this have to be perpetuated." In Reinsdorf's opinion, there are people—including major league baseball players—that do not think about Jackie Robinson and they should. "I remember 'colored' water fountains, 'colored' restrooms... people need to be reminded that those things existed," he said.

Eig enjoyed the panel discussion and believed that it was a great way to show the significance of Robinson's time on the field. "It's nice that baseball every year remembers Jackie Robinson, but it's not enough just to have everybody wear his uniform number. I think you have to teach people and remind the new generations about what makes Jackie Robinson special because it's not ancient history. It really is relevant to our lives today and it's great that the White Sox put that panel together so the people could hear why we're are talking about Jackie Robinson now all these years later," he said.

He admired Robinson for his bravery. "He tried something that no one had done before. He had to do it all by himself," he said. He recalled that there were 400 major league baseball players during that time and Robinson was the only player in that league who was African American. He pointed out that, despite several objections from racist white people, Robinson had to still perform on the baseball field. "His courage was his biggest asset," he said.

Eig wrote the book because he felt that Robinson's story was "glossed over a lot." The book was about Robinson's first season in the major leagues and how his performance on the field has made such an impact on America.

David Schultz, film critic

WATER FOR ELEPHANTS (1/2)

Based on Sara Gruen's bestseller novel, "Water for Elephants" is life and love under the big top in this adequate movie that is exquisitely mounted by its grace, beauty and human drama. Set during the Great Depression; Robert Pattinson proves there is life after the "Twilight" trilogy, portraying a young Polish student, Jacob Jankowski with a promising future attending Cornell University to become a veterinarian and possibly marrying his college sweetheart.

When during one of his classes, Jacob's life becomes altered. When he receives the tragic news of his parents were killed in an auto accident. And making matters worse, Jacob learns his parents' home was in foreclosure by the bank due to the sacrifice of his father funding his education.

Now with no roof over his head and no means of support having yet to graduate and being certified; a distraught Jacob wanders out of town and decides to jump aboard an oncoming train. Jacob awakens the next morning to discover the men he met the night before were not hobos but workers that were travelling in the freight car of a travelling circus.

Naturally befriended by one of the circus crew, Camel (Jim Norton) for their polish roots; Jacob is given a one day chance at working as a roustabout in the circus. Where during one of his many tasks, he happens to see the beautiful Marlena, (Reese Witherspoon) the circus's star attraction attending to her ailing white stallion who is also warned to not socialize with because she's married to the circus' charismatic yet possessive and ill tempered boss, August (Christophe Waltz), Jacob couldn't help but notice the lump on the horse, August asks to inspect the animal that confirm what he suspected that the horse needs to put down and out of its misery. But August refuses to accept the diagnosis.

August is willing to have kept the animal star performing until it drops in its tracks. Because of August's only concern is to keep the circus solvent by keeping the attendance up that might curtail his debts and expenses. And that the circus crew and performers knew August would do at any cost in an often heartless and cruel manner.

But Jacob goes against August's orders and guns down the horse that ultimately makes Jacob feel August's wrath in a beat down. But when Jacob reveals he's a veterinarian August gives Jacob a job in the circus.

Soon after, August makes an acquisition of an old, seemingly untrainable elephant, Rosie as his next star attraction for his wife, Marlena to ride upon. It soon becomes apparent of August's dark side and jealous streak through observing Jacob's gentle demeanor compared to his often cruel approach to training the pachyderm. Out of frustration because of the debt of this purchase has put on August as part of. His philosophy for survival in the circus business against August's personal disdain for the bigger and successful rival, Ringling Bros, circus But Rosie seems to only respond well to Jacob who later discovers that Rosie can respond to orders when given in polish.

With the sympathetic Jacob descvi9sion to stay with the circus out of love of Marlena and care for Rosie's welfare. It was bound to lead to a confrontation when during a celebration meant for Jacob who helped turn around the circus' fortune.

When August's jealousy is confirmed by watching Marlena's conversation with Jacob that misleads the true reason behind this circus's demise. The underlying revolt that isn't as obvious enough in the script and film as it should have been. The revolt among the unpaid and disgruntled workers who decide to unleash the caged animals during a sold out performance. Where ultimately August gets what he deserves from the elephant, Rosie in responds to August strangling his wife, Marlena. But we don't get what we deserve enough from this movie.

Even though the film is nicely bookended by Hal Holbrook as Jacob in his senior years who escapes the retirement home to return to his true home at a circus that he arrives too late for its performance. Where a young circus employer (Paul Schneider) becomes fascinated by the old gent who responds to an old publicity photo of Marlena and the elephant to tell the story in flashback.

For the most part, it's never an easy task to condense a popular book into an acceptable movie adaptation without making a few disconnecting mistakes. While director Francis Lawrence provides the right balance and discretion. here. The romance seems often one sided because as interesting as Pattinson's character is; due to the circumstances that led to him becoming a grown up Toby Tyler" who runs away to the circus.

Reese Witherspoon comes off adequate but not very interesting Her character is more like a boring pawn being blinded by the film's most compelling and complex character played effectively by Christoph Waltz who is the glue that holds this film together.

Waltz's character is a complicated man who loses control that resembled the flip side of Charlton Heston's circus boss role in director Cecil B. DeMille's soapy but entertaining 1952 Oscar winner, "The Greatest Show on Earth".

While "Water For Elephants" is designed to be this love story under the big top. It doesn't have the heat and passion to flow enough to be believable in this tepid love triangle. PG-13; 122min. A 20th Century Fox Pictures Release – Presented at selected theaters

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Illinois Redistricting

There is an important issue that is facing Chicago, more importantly the Westside of Chicago about how the new legislative and Senatorial Districts should be drawn. One of the important things the African-American community cannot fall short on is to let their voice be heard. This hearing on April 30 at Malcolm X College is imperative that African-Americans show up in numbers to voice their opinion because if we don't, the new boundaries for the legislative and Senatorial Districts will not truly reflect us. It will unfairly reflect different ethnic groups other than African-American. So we must stay vigilant and show up with our concerns that they don't dilute our community and leave our legislative and Senatorial district intact so that we are not cut up into three or more districts. That is the most important thing, that we remain intact so that we have a strong voice.

LANE CHANGE: Willie Lynch Still Enslaves U.S. 150 Year After the Civil War Began

A Commentary by Travles R. Lane

My, how time does fly by when you are standing still.

That is my gut reaction as the sesquicentennial of the costliest threat to national unity in the history of our nation, the U.S. Civil War, is remembered this month.

Because that recollection finds the United States again becoming a house rabidly divided by extreme demarcations rooted in race. And, as we approach the tri-centennial of the infamous Willie Lynch speech to colonial Virginia slave owners, we are again ignoring the elemental dictum of timeless wisdom that warns: "... a house divided against itself will not stand."

Then Illinois U.S. Representative Abraham Lincoln delivered those words in a speech in Springfield on June 16, 1858, three years before presiding as president over the long brutal war that preserved a union that has effectively remained divided by race since Appomattox ended the armed conflict.

Lincoln's famous address, aimed at framing the preservation of the union as antithetical to slavery, came some 70 years after the U.S. Constitution sanctioned slavery as a foundation of the country's economy and 166 years after Lynch told his listeners on the James River that his following his advice would help them preserve slavery for "hundreds of years, maybe thousands."

Lynch's simple method of guaranteeing slavery as a self-producing institution was centered on creating fear, distrust and envy among the slaves to keep them divided and controllable. He identified such factors as age, height, shade of skin color, sex and other "differences" to create divisive distrust among the slaves because, "...distrust is stronger than trust, and envy is stronger than adulation, respect, or admiration."

Nearly 300 years since Lynch's speech, the fruit of his poisonous creed continues to ripen among black Americans still divided by superficial fault lines in a devastated community near collapse that can ill afford disunity at any level.

But the petty and destructive divisions among us cultivated by the slave producing environment founded on Lynch's centuries old program was on full display in Chicago during our recent mayoral and aldermanic elections. Blacks could not unite and lost out, just as they did during the earlier state elections when a decades old personal grudge possibly denied Illinois its first black lieutenant governor.

I could go on of course, about how black folk have been programmed to distrust each other and fail at uniting behind a common agenda. But I do not want to mislead anyone into thinking I am just talking about "a black thing."

Because if the truth be told, the program of successful enslavement that Willie Lynch advocated to his listeners on a James River bank in Virginia before U. S. independence, was merely an unrefined, simplified blueprint for America's version of free market capitalism, as it existed in 1712, and as it exists today into the 21st Century. For the U.S. Constitutional framers put Lynch's program to good use when they founded this nation with a sanction for slavery and a denial of equal rights to all but wealthy land-owning white men.

The have nots in America of all colors have been sustaining their own enslavement ever since. And nothing less than a nationwide Willie Lynch economic and social program has allowed the rich and powerful to keep ordinary Americans divided and suspicious of each other since colonial days while creating a 2011 America, where less than 500 of the top richest households in the country have robbed and stolen their way to more than 60 percent of the nation's wealth. An affinity for Lynch's method of making slaves "self-generating and self-refueling" also enabled the bankers and corporations of this country to help themselves to staggering bailouts and tax breaks a the public trough two years ago while lengthening the unemployment rolls and taking money from the working poor.

Even the much ballyhooed Tea Party crowd running around shouting about "taking our country back" is nothing more than the product of Willie Lynch programming. Made fearful by the actual election of a black president, they truly no longer trust a government they once depended on to maintain their hegemony in the nation. And they are filled with loathing envy of very rich, who ironically would be the only group of Americans that would really benefit from the rabid policies espoused by ignorant, working class Tea Party fanatics.

So, perhaps it is poetic justice for us all that the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the Civil War finds race again at the center of our current state of disunity. Because just like back in 1861, we are hearing the old bromides about the sanctity of states' rights and the dangers of an overreaching federal government. Secessionist rhetoric tinged with less than subtle bigotry and a perceived notion of lost freedoms is filling the airwaves and the national political discourse.

Gun ownership is running rampant and bipartisanship has become political poison with a black man in the White House. Democracy has simply become a tool for widening the divide between rich and poor.

But unlike then, the triumph of the disunity forces next year and beyond won't just keep black Americans enslaved.

And time will continue standing still. Just saying.
